Henry is no doubt responsible for a lot of things, mostly good, but it seems to be going a trifle too far to blame him for the tariff policy of our neighbor.

RE ROSE "is good COFFEE"

Canada To The Fore

The geographical position of Canada and the United States naturally suggests contrasts and invites comparisons, and, as a rule, both at home and abroad, these are usually to the detriment of the Dominion. Careful examination will, however, establish one fact: Canada really presents the stronger and more progressive, and stable position.

Studied superficially, people see Canada with a greater area than the adjoining republic, but with less than a tenth of its population. In fact, the note within an area of a few hundred square miles around and including New York City, a population equal to that of Canada stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Superficially they see the gigantic industries of the United States, the enormous accumulations of wealth, the rush and bustle of its many large cities, and the bustling assurance of its people who believe, and do not hesitate to vehemently declare, that they are the greatest nation in the world.

In contrast they see Canada with, comparatively speaking, only a fringe of population, with only a few cities of the first rank, not very many millions, and the people as a whole, instead of being boastful, rather inclined to belittle themselves and their country.

This is the superficial picture seen by the average person who merely glances at the surface of things, and fails to take note of what is much more significant.

Are Canadians slow? Is the Dominion backward in development compared with even the United States? The answer is decidedly in the negative, as a more thorough examination of the growth and development of these two neighboring countries will reveal.

Canada today, with its nine or ten millions of people, is conducting as large a foreign trade as the United States did when it had a population of 75,000,000. On a per capita basis the "slow" Canadians are doing a very much larger foreign business today than the "aggressive" people to the south.

Canada today is producing more wealth from its mines than the United States did with a population of 25,000,000, and the value of Canadian manufactures at the present time is equal to the output of the United States factories when that country had 50,000,000 people. The export trade alone of Canada today is equal to $124 per capita, while in the United States at the present time it is only $37 per capita.

In worth-while education, in medical research work, in the observance of law and order, in the maintenance of proper social conditions in life, in a word, in the development of character which alone can make a nation strong and great, Canada compares more than favorably with its neighbor.

As a result, there is no other country in the world today, regardless of wealth or population, which is so successfully grappling with and solving huge problems, whether financial, economic or political, or which is making quite such substantial gains in its domestic affairs, and in world relations.

The position of Canada is sound. It is strong and growing stronger. It stood the shock of the Great War, and in that titanic struggle discovered itself and its people possessed of amazing virility and undimmed of powers and resources. It took second place to no other country in its contribution to victory. Equally, it sustained and successfully surmounted the many after-the-war problems, notwithstanding that the barren aftermath of the United States was a mere barge to that shouldered by the Dominion.

Why, then, deary the Dominion and make invidious comparisons with the United States based on superficial glance at size of population, number and size of cities, or industries, or wealth accumulations? Canada is not at present basking of many huge fortunes, but it can boast of something infinitely better, namely, that of all the go-ahead nations of today, none present a more even distribution of wealth among its people.

Furthermore, it is doubtful if any other country today is so steadily and permanently improving its position, and where the people as a whole are making progress in all things which make life worth while as is true in the case of Canada which is experiencing a real revival following the aftermath of the war.

Canadians need not be boastful, but they can and should be confident and self-reliant. They have every reason and justification for such an attitude towards life and the world.

Chilled Meat For Japan

New Trade Which Gives Prospects of Continued Expansion

In the past four years, the consumption of beef has doubled in Japan, and in 1924 over 1,200,000 lbs. of chilled and frozen beef from Canada were sold there in addition to live cattle. This was entirely a new trade, for which the prospects for continued expansion are declared favorable.

B.C. Has Best Dessert Apple

In the imperial apple shows in England during years 1922 to 1925, Canadian apples won 64 first prizes, 73 second, 21 thirds and 22 special prizes. In 1925 the British Columbia Jonathan was judged to be the best dessert apple in the British empire and the premier cooking apple was the Ontario Rhode Island Greening. In 1923 and 1924 Canadian grown McIntosh apples was judged to be the best dessert apple in the empire.

Kentucky's Anti-Gossip Law

Heavy Penalty For People Who Start Untrue Stories

Kentucky's far-famed anti-gossip law has struck again. In Nightrider Corbett Brown's court, Alex. C. Brown, an informant who bore false witness, according to a jury's finding, was fined $10. Gayheart, a mountaineer of Troublesome Creek, recently swore out a warrant against the neighbor, Albert Engle, charging that Engle uttered a malicious lie.

Officers searched the Engle home but found no trace of a lie. Engle then caused a warrant to be issued for Gayheart under the anti-gossip law.

This statute, passed by the 1924 legislature, provides heavy penalties for persons who indulge in "loose talk" and requires all persons accused under it to give the source of information of stories they tell.

Has Realized Expectations

Insulin Has Done All That Dr. Banting Hoped For

Reporting to the State Medical Society on "The Clinical Results of the Long-Continued Use of Insulin," Dr. J. R. Williams, of Rochester, said that all the high expectations held by the discoverer of this remedy had been met and that the apprehensions felt by some as to ultimate ill-effects from its use had proved groundless. In other words, insulin, while only in a few special cases is it a cure for diabetes, does enable the victims of a malady which formerly was next to avoidable to live on indefinitely and quite comfortably.

Dr. Banting, the Canadian to whom the world owes the utilization of this pancreatic extract, is to be counted as one of the great benefactors—a true ally to medicine and one of the many indicators of the enormous values of animal experimentation, intelligently conducted.—New York Times.

A BLEMISHED SKIN

Cannot be Relieved by Salves and Ointments

Irritating sores, pimples, eczema, skin rashes and other skin disorders are all signs of distress, telling that your blood is weak or impure. You cannot get rid of such troubles unless you root out the cause. The trouble is rooted in the blood and can only be removed by purifying and enriching the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills banish these troubles because they purify and build up the impoverished blood. This is proven over and over again. Among those who have thus benefited is Mrs. Chris E. Hammett, of Astoria, Ore., who was troubled with eczema for years and although I tried many remedies I did not find permanent relief until I used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Whenever I did a little work my hands pained me. Finally as the result of a statement I read, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I had not long taken them very long before I found they were helping me. I then put a dozen boxes, and before they were all gone every trace of the trouble had disappeared. Had I known of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills earlier I might have been spared the suffering I endured, and saved the money spent for other treatments that did not relieve me. I hope some other sufferer will benefit by my experience.

If your blood is out of order begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today and note their speedy beneficial results. Sold by medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Great Distinction For Canada

Senator Dandurand of Montreal is President of League of Nations

The president of the League of Nations is the Hon. Senator Raoul Dandurand, of Montreal. "The world has no higher pedestal on which to place a man," and is therefore a position of very great distinction not only for the occupant but for the country represented. Senator Dandurand presided at the assembly of 1925 and attended the special session in March of 1926 as one of the Canadian delegates.

Australian Voters Fined

Obliged to Exercise Franchise Unless Good Excuse Given

Hundreds of voters in South Australia were fined $250 each for not exercising their powers of franchise. Excuses were accepted in 6,400 cases. A woman who has to stay at home to care for her baby is exempt from punishment under the new Australian Compulsory Voting Law, which provides for fines up to $10 for electors who do not vote. This ruling has been made in cases growing out of the federal elections held last November.

H. B. Railway Terminus

To Investigate the Respective Merits of Port Nelson and Fort Churchill

Far from convinced that Port Nelson is the port to become the terminus of the Hudson Bay Railway, the Federal Government is advocating an investigation to show the comparative advantages of Port Churchill and Port Nelson. While western members of parliament have constantly been making a closed question for years, it now appears that the government is still undecided as to which port the Hudson Bay Railway should be built. Therefore the proposal is to conduct a work in the 1926 session to rehabilitate the present line, up to Kettle Rapids, and to send out survey parties and other investigatory bodies to the mouth of the two ports. This policy is meeting with two objections. The Progressive party, which claims that the line should be built to Nelson, say they see in the proposal to reopen the controversy as to Port Churchill and Port Nelson a real menace to the completion of the road. Rather than take any chances, they are said for Port Nelson. Further than that, they see in the government policy an endorsement of the extreme eastern opinion, which is adverse to the whole proposition.

Turkey Developing Industry

Great Changes Being Made Under Government Encouragement

It has been no little surprise to note the way in which the "Turk" has set himself to the task of developing industry in his own land. The ancient and corrupt system of farming out the taxes has been abolished; the exports are steadily increasing, and the markets becoming stabilized, farming is developing, under government encouragement; thousands of tractors are at work on the new model farms, and experimental agricultural stations are being established; the railway and steamship service are steadily improving; and the news, postal and telegraphic arrangements (previously under foreign direction) are being the province of the specialists—Rev. A. M. Chirgwin in the London Nineteenth Century Review.

Two New Forest Reserves in B.C.

CHARACTER TESTS THE STORY!

People throughout this country are giving more thought to hygiene and to the purity of remedies on the market, but no one doubts the purity of Dr. Pierce's vegetable medicine, for they have been so favorably known for many years that everyone knows they are just what they are claimed to be. These medicines are the result of long research. A well-known physician, R. V. Pierce, M. D., who compounded them from health-giving herbs and roots long used in sickness by the Indians. Dr. Pierce's reputation as a leading and honored citizen of Buffalo, is a sufficient guarantee for the purity of that splendid tonic and blood purifier, the Golden Medical Discovery, and the security for women's health and system builder for women's ailments, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. South Africa's Public Debt

Is Growing Rapidly and Citizens Are Becoming Alarmed

The public debt of the Union of South Africa is growing so rapidly as to cause alarm among the thoughtful citizens. Since 1911 the debt has been increased by £100,000,715, while the amount of debt extinguished has been only £12,835,913. Taking an average for the 15 years since the establishment of the Union, the government has been increasing its debt by over £5,000,000 per annum, but actually decreasing it by only £350,000 a year. The total indebtedness of the Union is now £214,323,682.

EDUCATION

Chaos is the destruction of the institutions that keep society in a state of civilization. Institutions, by their very nature, are co-operative. Individuals exist in savagery; institutions in collective society. Education is the cornerstone of good government; and it follows, as does the night the day, that ignorance and bad government or no government go hand in hand.

MOTHER'S DAY.

All opposition to the idea of so many "days" and "weeks" for the observance of this kind that seems to melt away at the thought of Mother's Day. The second Sunday in May of each year is a time for special remembrance of the mothers of the land. It embodies parenthood. Father comes in for his share of respect. One could not truly love a good mother and not love a good father. True hearts are built that way. But the name of mother is taken as symbolic of tenderness and genuine affection—the highest and truest known.

Time is the fitness of all things. By centering our thoughts at some particular time on any certain object of devotion we are thus enabled to intensify our loyalty and impress great object lessons upon others. This is one reason for Mother's Day. The other and best reason is mother herself.

The greatest mark of respect we ever saw is a safety mark on a street in front of a school house.

LUTHER BURBANK

He who made two roses grow where only one grew before; who put sweet into sour, beauty into the commonplace, high quality into the ordinary, was Luther Burbank, the plant wizard. The common household of the land mourns his loss no less than does the world of science.

Burbank's religion was as mysterious as his scientific demonstration. But we do know that in his parting hours he declared that he loved all humanity and that his was a religion of love. His life was devoted to the growth and development of vegetables and flowers—to the engrafting of new forms and species of growth. He bettered mankind through the improvement of vegetable-kind. Like many of the great men of the world, his searches were in specialized fields. In such cases when men announce their views on subjects more or less foreign to their particular fields of work, they are liable to be misunderstood by the world. Besides this, Burbank's view of duty was personal and private to him, and no one but Burbank must answer for it. But his priceless achievements in science belong to the world, and it is by and for these that history will proclaim and judge him.

Speaking of the phrase "works of art," it was the noble art of printing that caused them to put in the word "works."

The great human race is between the churches trying to convert the world and the courts trying to convict it.

When steamships sail the desert, and camels walk the sea; then dad will quit tobacco, and mother quit her tea.

The way of the transgressor is hard, but catching him is the hardest.

Life is what we make it. If we make it.

Orient Likes Canadian Wheat
Reasonable increase in Oriental demand for Canadian wheat is reflected in the regular statistical report of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange. To the end of February the Orient took 16,981,755 bushels, as against 3,012,449 bushels in 1924-25 and 8,506,500 bushels in 1923-24. This increase is due to growing favor of Canadian hard wheat and to the fact that prices were right this season.

GOD'S COVENANT WITH NOAH

Golden Text: I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth. Genesis 9:13.

Lesson: Genesis 5:28 to 9:29. Devotional Reading: Psalm 89:1-16.

Explanations and Comments

1. Antediluvian Wickedness and Its Consequences.—Read the account of the Deluge, under the topic, "Light from Archaeology," and then the Teaching Training Thought, page 158. The story explains an unusual flood as caused by God's wrath at the wickedness of the human race and his consequent desire to destroy an mankind. Noah and his family alone escaped. The conception of an angry God who repented having made man was natural to men when first groping after a knowledge of the true God.

2. Building and Entering the Ark, 6:13 to 7:16. Amidst all the wickedness, Noah lived a blameless life. "God is in a special manner pleased with those that are good in bad times and places." Noah was therefore instructed in righteousness, because he was so in that wicked and abominable generation (Mather Henry). By faith, Noah built a great ark, and in it he saved his family, the animals, and the ark was built of cypress and coated with pitch; in shape it was like a chest with that bottom, four hundred and fifty feet long, seventy-five feet broad, and forty-five feet deep, built upon a hill under the name of Mount Ararat, and the ark, built and supported by posts. Its three decks were divided into compartments.

British Families Coming

Twelve hundred British families are expected this year under the 3,000 family migration scheme, now in operation between Canada and Great Britain. The original agreement extends over three years, and if the anticipated 1,200 families arrive in 1926, one-half of the three thousand will be in the Dominion and the agreement will have one more year to run.

ON THE AIR

What is Doing in the World of Radio

Next to a telephone that will answer is a radio machine that registers everything but the programme that is struggling to present itself. The man who says that he caught a fifteen-pound bass last summer is now telling that his radio set got Europe nearly every night.

Heartbeats that may be heard across the continent today are possible by the means of a new "radio stethoscope," recently experimented on at the University of Minnesota. Anthony Zelony, professor of physics at the university, announces.

Out in Ingonay, Mont, the citizens close down the local power plant when they agree on a good radio programme. They agree that it is better to be without the power than to have the plant interfere with radio reception, according to a letter received at station WHIT, Chicago.

A run-down "B" battery may cause crackling sounds that cannot be distinguished from some forms of static. The quickest way to determine between them is to disconnect aerial and ground while your set is in operation. If the noise stops, your batteries are not causing it.

Failure Of One-Crop System

Attention Now Being Given to the Growing of Legumes

(By Jas. D. McGee, Greenock Stock Farms, Brandon, Manitoba). Western Canada in the past has been a small grain growing country. The climate, soil and all other conditions have combined here to justify the great grain fields to the exclusion of other lines of farming. However, on land that has been farmed from 19 to 25 years, the production has decreased from various causes, and the profits in strictly grain farming are no longer certain.

All one-crop or grain farmers realize sooner or later that the fundamental principle of farming is being neglected; that the decrease in yields and the difficulty with weeds, plant diseases and other pests, is due to the one-crop system, which depletes the available fertility of the soil, and does not provide for saving or increasing this fertility, or for controlling weeds and other pests. Hence, the great interest being taken in livestock, corn, alfalfa and clovers is not for these things alone, but because they will be the means by which the profitable yields and production of small grains may be maintained.

The one-crop system is not peculiar to Western Canada, as all new countries have "perished" in the growing of legumes, the raising of livestock and perhaps to the use of some commercial fertilizer.

"Legume" is the name of a class of plants of which alfalfa, sweet clover and other clovers, beans, peas, etc., are members. The seed is borne in some form of pod. This class of plants differ from all others in that they provide a means of obtaining nitrogen from the air. Nitrogen is one of the essential elements of plant food. No plant can make any growth whatever without it, and it is the most expensive element when bought in commercial fertilizer. It is also the most abundant element in nature, as more than half the air is nitrogen. Hence, clovers, alfalfa, etc.—legumes—are utilized for the purpose of restoring this element of soil fertility. Young animals, and particularly milk cows, must have nitrogen in their feed, for no growth or milk can be made without nitrogen.

All plants, use nitrogen, but the grains, grasses, corn, etc., must rely on the small available store in the soil, while the legumes may draw on the unlimited stores in the air. For this reason the hay and seed from legumes are much richer in nitrogen than that from the grains and grasses. Legumes obtain this atmospheric nitrogen by the aid of bacteria which live in tubercles on their roots. Unless these tubercles are present, the legume would be no more able to utilize the atmospheric nitrogen than any other plant. When the bacteria are not present, or for any reason will not grow on the roots, the legume will not produce satisfactorily because it is natural for these plants to obtain a part of their nitrogen from the air. Artificial inoculation, liming the soil, etc., may be expected to advantage, especially on poorer soils.

Farmers of the old farming region resort to every known means of saving plant food and returning it to the soil. Here in the new country, when land is worked out, we have moved to west or north, to new land, and cleared the lumber from new land.

The greatest asset of the farmer is his soil fertility. Like fortune, this fertility may either be used over and over again, or it can be dissipated and wasted in a few years. When yields are below the cost of production, or it below what they formerly were, it is evident that there is need for studying this situation. Rotation of crops aids in controlling weeds, plant diseases and insect pests, and also enables the farmer to feed livestock and return a part of the fertility to the soil in the shape of barnyard manure.

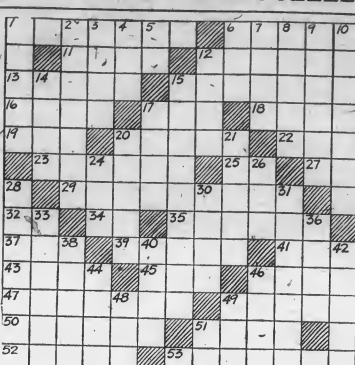

The time is here when these things must receive attention, and prudent the farmer who adopts a system of farming that will save soil fertility, and keep his land free of weeds and plant diseases, while he is yet able to do so.

THREE HAPPY FAMILIES

Among the recent newcomers to the Canadian West are three large British families who arrived at Halifax on February 28th, on board the Canadair.

All are bound for Vancouver, and travelled under the special reduced rate arranged for by the Government. Some indication of what they think of the adventure of the voyage, and their delight in coming to Canada, may be gained from their happy interested faces. They included two brothers Osmond from Newport, Monmouth, and their wives and seven children. The other family is from Doncaster, also bound for British Columbia. The photograph shows them on the deck of the Canadair.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, pretty, modern, a shop girl, finding her way alone in the world, summoned into the presence of Graydon, her employer, to learn that an unknown man has given her a cool million to spend as she wishes. Bused, incoherent, she asks as to the meaning of this deluge of money. He is told that she is not even to know the name of the man who is giving her the money. "You will not be asked to give anything," said Graydon, in reply to her questioning. Still unable to understand this overwhelming information, she is sent to banker Eggleston where the money is on deposit.

"If your benefactor has directions to give," Eggleston went on, with the banker's manner of monotonous dwelling upon the details of a financial bargain, "they will be given the bank, and will have to do only with additions to your funds, or the cessation of them. At any rate, the present deposit of one million dollars, which includes a small fee we shall be glad to negotiate for you should you require the cash, is at your disposition and none of it may be withdrawn from it. It could not be, in any event, as it has been completely transferred to your account. You must accept it, to do with it as you will. You will not be asked for anything."

"And it's really true that I don't have to go back to the girls?" I asked my job at the store?" Eggleston's smile was quizzical. "I should be rather astonished to know that a young woman with a million dollars in the bank would be concerned as much with the selling of silks as the buying of them."

Joanna nodded. "If I had a million dollars you can bet the last shot on your hip—I mean you can bet I'd do a lot of buying, all right."

"I wouldn't wonder," Eggleston commented, shortly. Joanna looked up at him quickly, detecting the hardness in his voice. "Oh," she answered him gravely as if to defend herself against his implied disapproval; "I wouldn't put it all into dancing pants, you know?"

The girl floundered. She'd never thought much beyond dancing pants and their kindred things.

"What else, then?" Eggleston repeated.

There was nothing for Joanna to do but fall back upon her subtleties. She had many subtleties. They covered a multitude of a girl's needs nowadays.

"Wait until something like what you're kidding me about really happens," she said at last, brightly. "Then watch me!"

"Perhaps that will be the better bargain," the banker agreed, his voice hard in the unpleasant way the girl didn't like so much. He turned to the opened check book which lay forgotten at her hand. "It will be fine to feel real, won't it, when you have filled out one of those?"

The girl's wits awoke again. She picked up the book of long, slender leaves, and examined it curiously. Here, at her finger tips, would be the test of the impossible dream these two old men, her employer, Graydon, and his friend, Eggleston, were pulling her into. She clutched at an obvious excuse to postpone what she was convinced would be the tumbling down of the house of cards that was being built for her.

"I've never had to write out one of these," she protested. "I'm afraid I've got it twisted."

The man who had been watching from the window came abruptly into the room. A sign, merely a meeting of the eyes, passed across the girl between him and the banker. Joanna turned sharply when she realized a new figure was standing almost beside her. She knew, instantly, that she had been right in feeling an additional presence in the room. When she turned to the newcomer's face a sudden fear, a sense of danger, tingled along her nerves. She had met many men in whose slightest approach she always recognized a challenger and a rival against her battlements. It consciously she stiffened in her chair. But Eggleston spoke calmly:

"I have forgotten to present Mr. Brandon. He is very close to me, in a manner, and is interested in your extraordinary circumstances—of which I have told him. He begged me to let him pay you his compliments."

Brandon bowed, easily, his manner marking him immediately in Joanna's mind, as one who could make developments gracefully at any kind of fortune. She reflected that he would be the sort that would dance well and say things that fitted the music.

"But I am going to ask Miss Manners if I can do more than offer my congratulations," Brandon said, smiling down at her. "Perhaps she will allow me to help her draw her first check. That will be something I shall always remember—when Miss Joanna has taken her place among the hill tops."

Dazed again by the imminence of the test, Joanna obeyed him silently, the letters being by her pen running together in a black mist as he pointed out the place for her signature, the date, and the amount. After one or two attempts she signed her name to his satisfaction and her own. She wrote in the date—as supplied by Brandon.

"And now," Brandon said, softly, almost caressingly, "the amount."

She looked across at him. Eggleston. He nodded. "Any amount you need—or that would like to carry away," he said.

His impulse stirred Joanna's blood. She looked at the money, one, puncture the bubble with one stroke of her pen. Her fingers firm, now, a light of determination in her eyes. She would demand a sum which would mean—well, something would happen then!

Her pen shaped the line: "One Hundred Dollars!"

Brandon laughed. He lifted the check, he looked at it, and then, faintly, "Written out. He read the amount aloud. A twinkle came into the eyes of the banker at the other side of the table, but he said nothing. "Let's try it again," Brandon said, looking down into the puzzled face of the girl. "A hundred dollars will hardly buy you—what shall you buy first, wasn't it dancing pants, you said? Well—surely you will want more than one pair. So, let me fill in another check for you."

He tore the paper he held, crumpled it, and tossed it aside. Pulling the check book to his own hand he filled in the money line, "Ten thousand dollars!"

"There," he said, as he placed the paper for the girl to sign. "That will make a better beginning for you!" The banker turned toward his bell. A messenger responded almost immediately.

"You will have this cashed at once," the banker ordered the messenger. "Send the first draft upon the new account of Joanna Manners. And bring the money here. She will want it immediately."

CHAPTER IV.

The First Triumph and Defeat With the crisp notes of her ten thousand dollars spread on the table before her, with Eggleston, the grave, impenetrable banker, and Francis Brandon, debonair, easy mannered courtier of the new world into which she was

Tanlac builds strong bodies

"I must ever hope to know how Tanlac helped me. For twelve years I suffered with nervous indigestion. Three bottles of Tanlac gave back health, strength and appetite. Colman J. Lee, Montreal."

There's nothing like Tanlac to purify the blood, put the stomach and liver in working order and build up a run-down body.

Millions of men and women have been benefited by this great tonic and builder that is compounded under the famous Tanlac formula from roots, bark and herbs.

If you are nervous, suffer from indigestion, have rheumatism, a torpid liver, buy a bottle of Tanlac at your drug store today. See how you start to improve right from the first. Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills for constipation.

being ushered, silently watching her, Joanna closed her eyes in quiet confusion with herself.

It was real! The fantasy had become a chapter of life with "Miss Twenty-seven of the Silks" lifted from the valley to the hilltops where there possibly could be any shadows.

Weakly, she made new battle for understanding, and again lost. These two men, one of which, she was sure, knew the whole of the mystery, would tell her nothing. Brandon professed to know no more than she; he declared that the banker had told him nothing of the motive or the source of her sudden shower of gold.

"But," said Brandon, "you will not shut me out. I hope you will rest your wondrous. You will let me speak with you, now and then, along the new paths?"

Principles Of The Press

President Coolidge Covered Subject In Very Few Words

President Coolidge on the subject of journalism, the following passages are selected as particularly worthy of quotation:

The right to have a fair and complete discussion of all problems is a necessary attribute of a free people. It is the function of a free press not only to make the truth available to everyone within its sphere, but to cherish and develop a public sentiment for all that is loyal to truth.

Free discussion, but a free discussion which aims at truth, cherishes truth and develops truth. Volumes could not have covered the subject more adequately—Buffalo Express.

Educational Tour

Montana Farmers to Pay Visit to Saskatchewan This Summer

Authorities in the six northeastern counties of Montana are co-operating in conducting an educational tour of farmers to Saskatchewan during the month of July. It is proposed to visit several points, including Regina and London, and it is very likely that the party will visit the central section of the province to see how farming is carried on there as compared to the more southerly districts.

Was Freed By Livingstone

British East African Owed Liberty to Famous Explorer

Once a fettered slave, and released from letters by David Livingstone and Bishop Mackenzie, 66 years ago, a British East African native named Tom Bojiviro (Gomani), recently died. With others, Tom in shackles was led to slavery. The slave drive on the right of two white men, the gang, was taken to Cape Town, where they were educated. Later Tom and two companions volunteered to return to their old homes and act as interpreters to the Livingstone mission party in 1875, which was setting out to open up the East African lake district to mission work. He was the founder of Blantyre, and later found relatives from whom he had been stolen sixteen years before. He then took to elephant hunting, and later became under chief of a village. He made the last link with Blantyre, and its romantic history.

Stones May Reveal Early Religious Beliefs

Professor of Egyptology Expects to Make Known Translation of Inscriptions

Religious beliefs regarding life beyond the grave, held by Egyptians more than 2,000 years before the birth of Christ, may be revealed in inscriptions on stones just discovered in the University of Gelliford Museum.

Two stones on which inscriptions were carved served as the jamb and lintel of the tomb of Sennetum, which was explored by archaeologists about the time the civil war ended. Sennetum probably was an officer of the ancient king of Egypt and served as a guardian of the Valley of the Kings. The tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen was invaded by robbers. It may have been the founder of an hereditary line of keepers whose duty it was to guard the tombs from the depredations of grave robbers, a form of outwary that is as old as mankind. Says Dr. H. P. Lutz, professor of Egyptology: "He expects to make known a translation of the inscription soon."

Trying Out Ingenious Scheme

Dropping Mail Bags From Aeroplanes May Become Common Thing

Letters dropped 6,000 feet from aeroplanes into delivery boxes on the ground may become a common thing. It tests now being made prove successful. It is a waste of time for aeroplanes to make a landing every time a letter is delivered, so this ingenious scheme is being tried. Details have been kept secret (says a writer in Popular Science), but it is believed that at a certain distance from the earth parachutes will open so that the bags will fall down without damage. Waiting motor cars then will distribute the mail.

B.C. Lumber For Japan

The amount of lumber shipped from the Fraser River to Japan, during the first two months of this year is more than double the shipments in the same period of 1925, according to figures issued by the secretary of the harbor board. In January and February more than 6,000,000 feet went out, compared with less than 3,000,000 feet for the first two months of 1925.

Grain Shipments From Vancouver

A total of 43,699,613 bushels of wheat have been exported from Vancouver for the crop season to date, according to merchants exchange records. Daily shipments were around 200,000 bushels with the prospects being such a volume will continue to move outward for some time.

Attempt To Salvage

German Battle-Cruiser

Company Work at Scapa Flow

Company Working at Scapa Flow To Raise Hindenburg

Scapa Flow will be the scene this year of the biggest salvage feat ever attempted when the battle-cruiser Hindenburg—sunk in the scuttling of the German fleet six years ago—is to be refloated.

Twenty-one of the smaller vessels have been raised already by means of the floating docks and wires; but the Hindenburg, which has a displacement of 27,000 tons, is too unwieldy.

The water, therefore, is to be pumped out of her, so that she may automatically rise to the surface.

"She lies on an even keel," said Mr. Cox of Messrs. Cox and Danks Limited, the contractors, "with practically only her superstructure showing. Our main difficulty will be to stop up all portholes and the eight sea-cocks under the engine room, by the opening of which she was sunk, and thus prevent the inflowing of the water."

"Steel patches or concrete will be placed over the holes, and when this is completed she will be pumped out from the top."

"We estimate that the whole operation will occupy about six months. The four floating docks were moved into position round the Hindenburg on March 1, and will serve as working platforms for the divers and men engaged in the task."

"Twelve divers will be constantly at work, and they have already made a preliminary survey of the hull, which is lying in sand and shingle, covered with barnacles and thick seaweed."

If this operation is successful the firm anticipates that it will be possible to raise the remaining big ships which means at the rate of two a summer; but with the exception of the Hindenburg, which remained upright owing to the comparative shallowness of the water, the others are heaved over. The Hindenburg will be beached and broken up into scrap.

A MEDICINE THAT

ALL MOTHERS PRAISE

Baby's Own Tablets Banish

Colic and Childhood

Illments

"I have used Baby's Own Tablets in my home for the past fifteen years, and I believe the good health my children enjoy is due entirely to this medicine. The Tablets are helpful at teething time and colds and are always beneficial in the minor ailments of little ones. I have recommended Baby's Own Tablets to other mothers whose experience with them has been as satisfactory as my own."

Baby's Own Tablets do one thing only, but they do it well. They act as a gentle laxative which thoroughly regulates the bowels and sweetens the stomach, thus banishing constipation and indigestion; colds and simple fevers and turn the cross, sickly baby into a well, happy, laughing child.

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Talked Too Much

An Englishman and Irishman employed in a drug store in Florence went on a spree together the other day. Both were arrested. The Irishman was let off with a light fine, because he was only drunk and disorderly. The Englishman was sent to prison for eight months and fined 3,000 lire. In addition to being drunk, he had spoken disrespectfully of Mussolini. People have to speak softly in Italy these days.—Hamilton Herald.

Keeping Fit! A Matter of Habit!

Good Health Is Within Reach of All Who Observe It

There is a very good reason why so many people find themselves subject to listlessness, headaches, biliousness and weakened vitality. They have failed to acquire that beautiful habit of regular daily bowel evacuation, with the result that they find themselves victims of constipation.

Modern living conditions tend to decrease the amount of natural lubricant in the intestines, making regular easy elimination of the bowel contents difficult.

Under such circumstances poisons from the waste matter that remains behind are picked up by the blood and absorbed by the system, resulting in undermining the general health and vitality.

Najol, the scientific intestinal lubricant, answers nature's demand, and makes elimination safe and easy. Najol softens the waste matter and permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Najol is not a laxative, and may be taken for any length of time without ill effects. At all druggists.

Little Helps For This Week

Lo, I am with you always.—Matt. xxviii, 20.

The day is long and the day is hard. We are tired of the march and of keeping guard.

Tired of the sense of a fight to be won. Of days in live through and work to be done.

Tired of ourselves and of being alone. And all the while did we only see. We walk in the dear Lord's company; We fight to let His who never ours arm.

He turns the arrows which else might have hurt.

And out of the storm He brings a calm.—Susan Coolidge.

Did you not know me, my child? You have thought the thoughts that I inspired; you have spoken my words; you set forth to fight on my side in the battle against evil; and yet you forgot me, and have often gone near to deny me while I was standing by your side, and giving you the strength to speak and think a life which you took to be your own. Look at me now, imagine if I am not better than the angels, have I had me from you.—Anne Keary.

An Oil of Merit—Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the best qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won an untold public favor from the first. A trial of it will show you its power to repair and heal.

The rapid development of the fish oil and fish products industry on the Pacific coast this year may necessitate the fitting up of three coastwise vessels as tankers to carry oil from the reduction plants. Last year one vessel found this method successful. Fish reduction plants. It is estimated, will produce 10,000 tons of fish meal and fertilizer this year.

President E. W.
